INDIA, UAE deepen ties with defence, energy and AI agreements

Officials said the agreement would strengthen India's energy security amid Gulf tensions, oil volatility

ABU DHABI

India and the United Arab Emirates on Friday strengthened their strategic partnership by signing a series of major agreements covering defence, energy security, artificial intelligence, ship repair and investment during Prime Minister Narendra Modi's visit to the Gulf nation.

Prime Minister Modi held talks with UAE President Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan amid growing instability in West Asia and rising concerns over global energy supplies.

The two countries agreed on a framework for a strategic defence partnership aimed at boosting defence manufacturing collaboration, technology sharing, innovation and regional security cooperation. The agreement is expected to strengthen long-term military and industrial ties between the two nations.

India and the UAE also signed agreements related to strategic petroleum reserves and long-term supply of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG). Officials said the pact would help India strengthen energy security at a time when global oil markets remain volatile due to tensions in the Gulf region and disruptions linked to the Strait of Hormuz crisis.

The agreements also include plans for setting up a ship repair cluster in Gujarat's Vadinar region and cooperation in maritime skill development. Officials said the project would support India's "Make in India" initiative and strengthen coastal infrastructure.

Another major outcome was the proposal to establish a supercomputer cluster to boost India's artificial intelligence capabilities and digital infrastructure.

The UAE additionally announced an investment commitment of nearly USD 5 billion aimed at expanding economic opportunities and generating employment.

The agreements come at a time when both countries are seeking stronger economic and strategic cooperation amid growing geopolitical uncertainty in West Asia.

"Concluding a short but highly productive visit to the UAE. I am confident that the outcomes of this visit will further strengthen our friendship and contribute to growth and prosperity." —Narendra Modi, PM

CM defends dress code, slams BJP over NEET controversy

Karnataka Chief Minister accuses BJP of hypocrisy on dress code and silence over NEET paper leak affecting lakhs of students.

"Educational institutions must promote equality, dignity, fraternity and secular values."
—Siddaramaiah, Karnataka Chief Minister

BENGALURU

Karnataka Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Friday strongly defended the State government's revised dress code policy in educational institutions, stating that it was based on the constitutional principle of equal respect for all religions. At the same time, he launched a sharp attack on the BJP and Prime Minister Narendra Modi over the NEET examination controversy and alleged paper leak.

In a detailed press statement, Siddaramaiah said the revised dress code implemented in schools and colleges allows limited traditional and faith-based symbols as long as they remain compatible with prescribed uniforms and do not disturb discipline or the secular character of institutions.

The Chief Minister accused BJP leaders of creating communal tensions in the past over issues like hijab and sacred threads while remaining silent on the cancellation of the NEET examination, which has impacted lakhs of students across the country.

"Can they not see the tears of students who are crying because of the cancellation of the NEET examination?" Siddaramaiah questioned.

He alleged that while BJP leaders protested aggressively over minor lapses in Karnataka's CET examinations, they have failed to speak out despite serious allegations surrounding the NEET paper leak. Siddaramaiah further held the Union Government responsible for undermining Karnataka's education system by imposing NEET.

The Chief Minister reiterated that the CET system introduced by previous Congress governments had enabled thousands of poor and rural students to pursue professional education. He claimed the NEET system has disadvantaged such students and weakened the State's authority over education. Siddaramaiah also demanded the resignation of Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan and called on Prime Minister Modi to apologise to students affected by the controversy.

CM SLAMS FUEL PRICE HIKE

Karnataka Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Friday strongly criticised the Centre over the latest petrol and diesel price hike, warning that it would severely affect common people and trigger inflation in daily essentials. Speaking in Bengaluru, Siddaramaiah said the increase in fuel prices after Assembly elections was "expected" and accused the BJP-led Centre of repeatedly burdening citizens through rising fuel costs since Narendra Modi assumed office.

DCM Targets BJP, Modi and HDK over SIR, Fuel Hike & Bidadi Row

BENGALURU

Karnataka Deputy Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar on Friday launched a multi-pronged attack on the BJP-led Centre, Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Minister H. D. Kumaraswamy over issues ranging from the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls to fuel price hikes and the controversial Bidadi township project.

"How can ordinary people stop using vehicles or reduce essential fuel consumption?" DK Shivakumar Dy CM

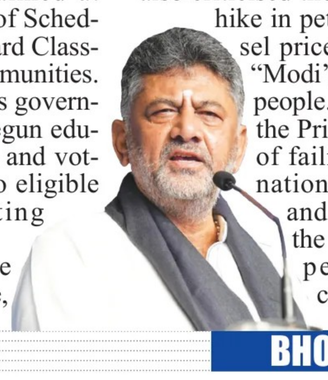
Addressing reporters in Bengaluru, Shivakumar alleged that the SIR exercise initiated by the Election Commission was aimed at removing the votes of Scheduled Castes, Backward Classes and minority communities. He said the Congress government had already begun educating party leaders and voters to ensure that no eligible citizen loses voting rights.

"Its aim is to see that Scheduled Caste, backward class and minority votes are cut. But we will ensure that they are protected," he said.

The Deputy Chief Minister also criticised the ₹3 per litre hike in petrol and diesel prices, calling it "Modi's gift" to the people. He accused the Prime Minister of failing in international relations and questioned the Centre's appeal urging citizens to reduce fuel use and postpone gold purchases amid the West Asia crisis.

Shivakumar further hit out at Kumaraswamy over his criticism of the proposed Bidadi township project. He questioned why the JD(S) leader had not de-notified the land when he himself served as Chief Minister.

The Deputy Chief Minister defended the project, saying it would benefit future generations despite opposition from sections of farmers in Ramanagara district.



Fuel Price Hike Criticism

Dy CM termed the latest petrol and diesel price increase as a result of the Centre's failed foreign policy and worsening global relations. He also criticised suggestions made by the PM asking citizens to limit fuel usage and postpone gold purchases, calling them impractical for ordinary families.

Bidadi Township Controversy

The Bidadi township project has sparked protests from sections of farmers. Shivakumar defended the proposal and claimed Kumaraswamy was criticising the project only for political reasons, despite the initiative originating during the JD(S) leader's tenure as Chief Minister.

BHOJSHALA TEMPLE VERDICT

MP HC declares Bhojshala a Saraswati Temple

The Bhojshala dispute has remained one of Madhya Pradesh's most sensitive religious issues for decades. Hindu groups claim the site was originally a Saraswati temple established by King Bhoj in the 11th century, while Muslims have offered prayers there as the Kamal Maula Mosque. In 2003, the ASI allowed Hindus and Muslims to use the complex on different days under regulated arrangements. However, Hindu organisations challenged the order, demanding unrestricted worship rights and restoration of the temple's original status. The Supreme Court had earlier ordered maintenance of status quo while permitting an ASI survey of the site.

BHOPAL

The Madhya Pradesh High Court on Friday ruled that the disputed Bhojshala-Kamal Maula Mosque complex in Dhar district is a temple dedicated to Goddess Saraswati and quashed a 2003 order of the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) that had allowed Muslim prayers at the site.

A division bench comprising Justices Vijay Kumar Shukla and Alok Awasthi held that the religious character of the disputed structure was that of Bhojshala, a historic centre of Sanskrit learning associated with Goddess Saraswati worship.

The court said the ASI order restricting Hindu worship rights and permitting namaz within the complex could not continue.

The bench observed that members of the Muslim community may seek alternative land from the state government for construction of a mosque in Dhar district.

The court relied on archaeological findings, ASI reports, historical records and principles laid down in the Ayodhya verdict while delivering the judgment.

According to the court, historical literature and archaeological evidence strongly indicated the existence of a Saraswati temple at the site.

The ASI's 2024 survey report had also stated that several parts of the present structure appeared to be constructed using remains of earlier temples, including decorated pillars and mutilated deity sculptures.

NEET to go fully computer-based from next year, says Pradhan

NEW DELHI

Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan on Friday announced that the National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test (NEET-UG) will be conducted in Computer-Based Test (CBT) mode from next year following the latest paper leak controversy.

Addressing a press conference, Pradhan said the NEET re-examination will be held on June 21 and assured students that the government would take strict measures to prevent malpractice in future examinations.

"Our topmost priority is the future of the students. We will not let malpractice happen this time," Pradhan said.

The minister admitted that examination questions had circulated under the guise of "guess papers," prompting the government to cancel the examination after verification between May 8 and May 11. He said the decision was taken to protect deserving students from losing opportunities because of "education mafias."

Pradhan said the Centre had adopted a zero-tolerance approach towards examination irregularities and handed over the case to the CBI. He added that no one involved in the leak, whether inside or outside the National Testing Agency (NTA), would be spared.

The minister also announced relief measures for candidates appearing in the re-examination. Students will receive refunds of previously paid examination fees, while the upcoming NEET retest will be conducted free of cost.

To reduce inconvenience, candidates will be allowed to reselect their preferred exam cities, and the duration of the examination will be extended by 15 minutes.

Southwest monsoon likely to reach Kerala on May 26

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The India Meteorological Department (IMD) on Friday said the southwest monsoon is likely to arrive in Kerala on May 26 as rainfall activity intensifies across the State. IMD issued an orange alert for Idukki and Malappuram districts, warning of very heavy rainfall between 115 mm and 204 mm within 24 hours. Yellow alerts were also sounded in several other districts, including Kollam, Ernakulam, Thrissur and Kozhikode. According to the IMD, favourable conditions are developing over the Bay of Bengal and Andaman Sea for the monsoon's advancement. A low-pressure area over the southwest Bay of Bengal is expected to strengthen rainfall activity in Kerala over the coming days.

Hijab rollback rekindles Karnataka's ideological battle

"Congress opens the door; BJP sees a political opportunity"

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM
MYSURU

The decision of the Indian National Congress government in Karnataka to withdraw the hijab ban imposed by the previous Bharatiya Janata Party regime has once again pushed identity politics to the centre stage ahead of future elections.

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah defended the move as a constitutional and inclusive step. "This is not a dress code intended to appease or hurt anyone; it is a dress code that respects the practices and traditions of all castes and religions," he said while backing the rollback. The Congress government argues that no student should be denied education because of faith-based practices and that the new order allows "limited traditional and customary symbols" while maintaining discipline in institutions.

However, the BJP has seized upon the issue to revive its Hindutva narrative, accusing the Congress of indulging in "vote-bank politics" and minority appeasement. BJP IT Cell chief Amit Malviya lashed out, saying, "Uniform means uniform. Classrooms are for education, not religious signalling."

Political observers believe the controversy could become a rallying point for the saffron party, particularly in coastal Karnataka and urban Hindu middle-class pockets where the hijab issue had earlier triggered massive mobilisation. For the BJP, the Congress move offers a fresh emotional issue capable of consolidating Hindu votes under the banner of "cultural identity" and "uniformity in education."

"Appeasement or Constitutional Balance?"

The opposition claims the Congress is deliberately pursuing pro-minority policies to strengthen its AHINDA social coalition — minorities, backward classes and Dalits. Critics within the BJP allege that such decisions are being driven either by electoral compulsions or signals from the Congress high command eager to preserve its minority vote bank nationally.

Congress leaders reject the accusation outright. Education Minister Madhu Bangarappa said, "Religious practices shouldn't come in between students' education and future. Our constitution allows all religions."

Yet politically, the timing of the decision may hand the BJP a combustible campaign issue. By projecting itself as the defender of "uniform civil culture" and accusing Congress of selective secularism, the saffron party could attempt to convert ideological outrage into electoral energy.

AIDSO holds stir against school merger policy in Mysuru

MYSURU

Condemning the State Government's "stubborn and authoritarian attitude" in continuing the merger of schools despite strong opposition, members of AIDSO and the Public Education Protection Committee staged a protest at Ramaswamy Circle in Mysuru.

Speaking during the protest, district vice-president Swathi alleged that under the KPS Magnet Scheme, the State Government is merging government schools. The process of merging nearby schools into PM SHRI schools has also begun. The government has reportedly issued orders to merge 317 schools across the state under the PM SHRI scheme. In addition, PU colleges are also being merged.

She said the government had promised eight guarantees for education and claimed it would build a model school system for the country. However, these guarantees are deceptive in reality. While subtly pushing aside the issue of closing government schools, the State Government is misleading the people of Karnataka under the mask of guarantees.

Swathi further stated that an official list proposing the merger of several village schools in Arasikere taluk of Hassan district has already been released, drawing severe opposition from villagers. According to the order, 58 students from Hallakatte School, 28 from MV Hatti, 34 from Hire Sadarahalli, and 40 from Holalkere — a total of 305 students studying in 15 villages — are to be shifted to the D.M. Kurke KPS Magnet School, she said.

She urged the government to strengthen government schools instead of "destroying the public education system" through KPS Magnet and PM SHRI schemes. She also called for building a strong people's movement to oppose such policies.

The protest was attended by Public Education Protection Committee advisor Ugranarasimhegowda, vice-president Hejjige Prakash, AIDSO district president Chandrakala, district secretary Nithin, office-bearers Chandana, Chandrika, Disha and Anjali, along with committee members Sandhya, Seema, Sunil, Suma, Basavaraju, Aasiya Begum, Neethushree, Poornima, Ranjith, Pushpa, Chandrashekhar and several others.

Society losing values due to decline in discipline: Jois

MYSURU

Social thinker and speaker Nataraja Jois expressed concern over the steady decline of moral values and mutual respect in society, stating that people remember great personalities like Basaveshwara only during commemorative events but fail to follow their ideals in everyday life.

Speaking at a Basava Jayanti programme held in Mysuru on Friday, Jois said society today was moving towards destruction because people had ignored the ethical teachings left behind by saints and reformers. What society had truly achieved despite organising numerous programmes in the name of Basavanna and asked whether people were genuinely practising the values he preached.

Quoting one of Basavanna's vachanas, he said truthful living alone was enough to transform society. Do not steal, do not kill, do not lie, do not insult others and do not praise yourself," he said, adding that lies and hatred were destroying families, society and even the nation.

Jois lamented that respect for elders, scholars, leaders and socially committed individuals was disappearing in public life. According to him, words, conduct and discipline no longer carried value in society, resulting in increasing intolerance and unnecessary opposition to every opinion or issue.

He observed that people were quick to criticise others without understanding issues properly and had developed a tendency to oppose merely for the sake of opposition. Social reformers like Basavanna, B. R. Ambedkar and Gautama Buddha never encouraged hatred or division but instead promoted meaningful and disciplined living.

He also stressed that the erosion of cultural values and the weakening of moral discipline among children had contributed to the present condition of society. "If we reflect honestly on our own lives even for a moment, we will understand where society stands today," he remarked.

During his address, Nataraja Jois also appreciated the contributions of scholars, writers and socially committed personalities present at the programme. He particularly praised Dr. Yoganna for his social service and commitment towards healthcare, describing him as a calm, trustworthy and service-oriented individual working for the welfare of society.

Hijab rollback: BJP leader slams state govt

MYSURU

BJP leader Dr. Hema Nandeesh has termed the Karnataka Government's decision to withdraw the ban on hijab as "condemnable."

In a press statement, she said schools and colleges should remain centres of equality that shape the future of students. It is an unpardonable offence that the very government which is supposed to preserve the sanctity of educational institutions is bringing religious fanaticism into schools and colleges. The decision was not merely about permitting hijab, but reflected the government's intention to dismantle a disciplined education system. Calling it the "height of appeasement politics," he accused the government of sowing division among students through its policy.

Referring to the Karnataka Government as "pro-hijab," she urged the youth to oppose the decision and take to the streets in protest and pro-Hindu organisations would extend full support to youth groups fighting against what she termed the "Tughlaq-style government."

Gruha Lakshmi scheme effect: Department honors SSLC topper

MYSURU

The remarkable achievement of talented Mysuru student Madhuri R. has become a shining example of how the State Government's ambitious Gruha Lakshmi scheme is emerging as a ray of financial security for poor and middle-class families.

Madhuri R. secured an outstanding 624 marks out of 625 in the 2026 SSLC examination, achieving a rare academic feat. Along with the family's hard work, the support received through the Gruha Lakshmi scheme also played a significant role in her success.

Madhuri's mother is a beneficiary of the Gruha Lakshmi scheme and has effectively utilized the financial assistance provided by the government for her daughter's educational needs. This family has thus become a model example of how government welfare schemes can bring positive social transformation when they reach deserving beneficiaries.

As directed by Women and Child Development Minister Lakshmi Hebbalkar, officials from the Women and Child Development Department visited Madhuri's residence today, distributed sweets, and congratulated her on the achievement.

"DON'T TURN GRAZING FIELDS INTO CONCRETE"

Farmers storm Mysuru ZP office with cattle and bullock carts

MYSURU

The otherwise busy premises of the Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha-led protest near the Mysuru Zilla Panchayat Office turned into a sea of green shawls, bullock carts and cattle on Friday as angry farmers intensified their agitation against the State Government's proposal to establish a NIMHANS-type healthcare facility at Guddamadanahalli village in Mysuru taluk.

Raising slogans against land acquisition, hundreds of farmers staged a massive dharna accusing the government of attempting to snatch away fertile grazing land in the name of development. The protesters arrived at the Zilla Panchayat office in traditional style — atop bullock carts and accompanied by cattle — symbolically highlighting the agrarian identity and livelihood tied to the disputed land.

While the farmers sat in protest inside the ZP compound, cattle were tied along Krishna Boulevard Road, drawing the attention of passersby and creating a striking visual protest in the heart of the city.

The controversy began after Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, in the 2026-27 State Budget, announced the setting up of a premier mental healthcare and neuroscience facility on the lines of National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences at Guddamadanahalli. Ever since the announcement, local farmers have been vehemently opposing the project, insisting that the identified land is not barren but highly fertile gomala (grazing) land supporting both agriculture and cattle rearing.

"We are not against hospitals or development. But why should fertile grazing land be destroyed when barren land is available elsewhere?" questioned a protesting farmer.

Another farmer said, "This land feeds our families and our cattle. If the government takes this away, how are villagers supposed to survive?"

Farmers alleged that officials were forcibly proceeding with acquisition and intimidating landowners despite repeated objections. Warning of intensified protests in the coming days, the agitators demanded that the government immediately shift the proposed project to an alternative location and protect the livelihoods of farming families.

Hardship for senior citizens to pay property tax

MGP writes to MCC Commissioner

MYSURU

The Mysore Grahakara Parishat has raised serious concerns over the alleged harassment faced by senior citizens residing at Tapovan Solace Apartment while attempting to pay property tax for the financial year 2026-27.

In a letter addressed to Shaikh Tanveer Asif, Commissioner of the Mysuru City Corporation, MGP founding working president Bhamy V. Shenoy expressed disappointment over the manner in which elderly residents were allegedly treated by civic officials.

Shenoy stated that several senior citizens, including Dr. Padmini, a life member of MGP and trustee of Pratham, had approached the organisation after facing difficulties in paying property tax despite obtaining Khata documents after prolonged efforts last year. According to the letter, the residents had paid double the standard property tax rates earlier and were eligible to pay the standard rate this year. However, when they attempted to make the payment, it was reportedly not accepted by officials.

The letter further stated that due to age-related health problems and limited mobility, many residents were unable to frequently visit government offices. Though they approached the Assistant Commissioner at the zonal office located opposite their apartment complex, they were allegedly informed that the issue could not be resolved there and were advised to visit the MCC head office.

Questioning the "double standards" in the system, Shenoy pointed out that a lower-level official had reportedly resolved a similar property tax issue for another resident of the same apartment complex, Leelavati.

Seeking intervention from the MCC Commissioner, Shenoy urged the civic body to not only resolve the grievances of the affected senior citizens but also investigate why citizens are made to "run from pillar to post" for basic services despite mechanisms such as RTI, Tatkal services and Janaspandana being in place.

He also observed that legal remedies such as consumer courts often become time-consuming due to repeated adjournments.

Report on alleged govt land encroachment to arrive today, action to follow: DC Reddy

MYSURU

Deputy Commissioner Lakshmikanth Reddy said a report regarding allegations of government land being handed over to private individuals in Rammanahalli will be submitted by civic authorities on Saturday, following which legal action will be initiated against those found responsible.

Speaking after hearing the grievances of Rammanahalli here on Friday, he assured residents that the matter would be thoroughly examined and action would be taken in accordance with the law after reviewing the inquiry report.

Reddy also clarified that the headquarters of the Town Panchayat would continue to function from Rammanahalli itself and branch offices could be opened elsewhere for tax collection and other administrative purposes, but the main office would remain in Rammanahalli.

During the meeting, villagers complained that work in the Town Panchayat office was not being carried out properly and alleged that chief officer Mahesh and Revenue Inspector Manjunath were frequently absent from the office. Residents also expressed frustration over being made to run from pillar to post regarding issues related to khata, taxes and other civic matters.

Responding to the grievances, Reddy assured the villagers that steps would be taken to resolve the issues at the earliest and improve administrative functioning in the Town Panchayat.

Hunsur MLA G. D. Harish Gowda, village leaders Mahadevu, Venkatayya, Nagaraju, Rajashekar, auditor Suresh, Srikanth Arasu, Manju, Govind and others were present during the meeting.

MLA Tanveer Sait assures Rs 50 lakhgrant for Basava Bhavan

MYSURU

Narasimharaja MLA Tanveer Sait promiwed that the remaining ₹50 lakh grant for the construction of Basaveshwara Bhavan will be released during the 2026-27 financial year, reaffirming his commitment towards strengthening social and community institutions inspired by Basava philosophy.

Speaking at a Basava Jayanti programme organised by the Basava Samiti and the School Teachers' Association here on Friday, he said he had already facilitated the release of ₹50 lakh after obtaining approval from the government and the Deputy Commissioner, while the remaining amount from his earlier promise of ₹1 crore would soon be sanctioned. The proposed Basaveshwara Bhavan should not remain just a building but evolve into a full-fledged centre with hostel facilities and space for religious, educational and social activities that would benefit the entire region.The Basava Samiti would soon be able to conduct its future programmes in its own premises.

Highlighting the ideals of 12th-century social reformer Basaveshwara, the MLA observed that society still faces many of the same challenges because people have not fully understood or practised Basava's vachanas in everyday life. Basava philosophy should go beyond ritualistic worship and must guide social service, education and community welfare.

Referring to the activities of Suttur Math, he noted that institutions in education and healthcare inspired by Basava ideals were now serving people in India and abroad.

Tanveer Sait also called upon parents to guide children beyond conventional career choices such as medicine and engineering and encourage them to pursue fields beneficial to society. There is a need for counselling and career guidance programmes for students after SSLC and underlined that character and discipline were equally important as academic success.

The MLA urged citizens to strengthen social bonds and support families in distress through community initiatives and local committees while maintaining confidentiality and timely assistance.

He also spoke about civic development works in the locality, particularly sewage and wastewater management projects. He appealed to residents to cooperate with ongoing underground drainage works despite temporary inconvenience, stating that the project would greatly benefit public health and sanitation in the area.

On this occasion, three persons, Dr P Shivaraju, senior KAS Officers, Dr Hema Patil, program coordinator, VTU, Mysuru and S Nagesh, circle inspector, Office of Police Commissioner, Mysuru, were felicitated.

LUXURY CAR PARKED, EV SCOOTER TAKES OVER

Mysuru MLA Srivatsa responds to PM's call

MYSURU

Responding to Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal to reduce the consumption of petrol and diesel, Mysuru BJP MLA T. S. Srivatsa has switched from his luxury car to an electric scooter for his constituency visits, drawing attention for his symbolic yet powerful gesture.

Speaking to reporters, Srivatsa said the Prime Minister had urged citizens to minimise fuel consumption in view of the disruptions in crude oil supply caused by the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. The appeal has been aimed at protecting the country's economic stability during uncertain global conditions.

Emphasising the need for collective responsibility, the MLA said, as responsible citizens, all of them must respond positively to the Prime Minister's call. Small changes in their daily habits can make a big difference to the nation.

Highlighting the Prime Minister's own example, Srivatsa pointed out that even Narendra Modi had reportedly reduced the number of escort vehicles in his convoy. Inspired by that, he too is trying to minimise the use of petrol and diesel vehicles as much as possible.

The sight of the MLA riding an electric scooter through the constituency instead of travelling in a high-end luxury car has sparked discussions among residents, with many praising the move as a message of environmental responsibility, fuel conservation and practical leadership.

Karnataka takes climate fight to grassroots with panchayat-level action plans

Marking a significant shift in India's climate governance journey, Karnataka is attempting to take the battle against climate change right down to village streets and farm fields.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a first-of-its-kind initiative, Karnataka is preparing individual climate action plans for all 5,994 gram panchayats and 340 urban local bodies, aiming to institutionalise climate accountability at the grassroots level.The ambitious exercise, currently under development, could make Karnataka the first state in India to create climate-specific governance frameworks for every village and urban local body.Speaking at a sustainability conclave organised by the Bangalore Chamber of Industry and Commerce in Bengaluru, T. Mahesh, Director of the Environmental Management and Policy Research Institute (EMPRI), said the initiative seeks to transform every gram panchayat into a unit of climate action."Karnataka's ambition is to make every gram panchayat a unit of climate accountability, where a farmer in Bidar and a panchayat leader in Kodagu both understand and act on their role in India's net-zero journey," Mahesh said.Following the revision of its State Climate Action Plan in 2024 to align with India's commitments under the Paris Agreement, Karnataka is now monitoring 105 climate targets across 15 departments, including agriculture, energy, rural development and urban development.Officials said the targets for the 2025–2030 period are being reviewed every month by an apex committee headed by the Chief Secretary.The proposed village-level plans are expected to focus on water-use efficiency, drought-resistant crops, millet cultivation, agroforestry, energy conservation and local plantation drives. Karnataka has already set a target of planting five crore saplings across wastelands, farmlands and canal-side areas.The state has also crossed the 50 per cent mark in renewable energy generation through expanding solar and wind power capacity.

Training programmes involving government officials, academic institutions and industry groups are already underway to prepare local bodies for implementation.

Cong wary of voter exclusions as K'taka gears up for SIR exercise

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Election Commission of India's Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls, scheduled to begin in Karnataka on June 20, has triggered concern within the Congress party, with leaders fearing exclusion of sections of its traditional support base from the revised voter list.

Sources said Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and senior Congress leaders have discussed apprehensions over possible exclusion of minorities, migrant populations and economically weaker sections during the verification process.

The month-long door-to-door exercise by Booth Level Officers (BLOs) is expected to cover nearly 5.5 crore voters across Karnataka.

Health Minister Dinesh Gundu Rao said the party was closely monitoring the process in light of developments witnessed in other states.

"There are apprehensions after what happened in West Bengal. Many people were allegedly deprived of their voting rights due to confusion during the revision process," Rao said, adding that proper procedures and safeguards were necessary to ensure eligible voters were not left out.

Rao also referred to Assam, alleging that minority voters there had faced disadvantages due to gerrymandering and electoral changes.

Congress spokesperson Brijesh Kalappa said the party had intensified booth-level vigilance and planned awareness drives among vulnerable communities.

"We anticipate certain communities may be impacted. Voters will be educated and monitored closely during the process," he said.

BJP State President B. Y. Vijayendra accused Congress of opposing the SIR exercise for political reasons, while BJP MLC N. Ravikumar said the process would help clean electoral rolls by removing duplicate and deceased voters.

Rizwan Arshad said awareness campaigns would be launched in minority-dominated areas to ensure no eligible voter was disenfranchised. Congress MLC H. A. Iqbal Hussain said the party would train BLA-2 workers to monitor the exercise alongside BLOs.

The month-long door-to-door voter verification by Booth Level Officers (BLOs) will formally begin on June 30 and cover an estimated 5.5 crore voters across the state.

Congress leaders are also concerned that migrant workers in urban areas such as Bengaluru, Kodagu and Chikkamagaluru may face documentation-related confusion during verification.

Rural Development and Panchayat Raj Minister Priyank Kharge said the party supported identifying genuine voters but questioned the implementation process.

"SIR should not merely mean deleting names, but ensuring a genuine and fair voter list," he said.

HC STAYS FSSAI ADVISORY RESTRICTING USE OF ASHWAGANDHA LEAVES

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has granted an interim stay on an advisory issued by the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) restricting the use of Ashwagandha leaves and their extracts in food products.The interim order was passed by a single-judge bench of Justice S.R. Krishnakumar while hearing petitions filed by Sami-Sabinsa Group Limited and Kerry Inc challenging the advisory.The court directed the Union Government and the concerned authorities to file objections and adjourned the matter to June 8. It clarified that the interim relief would apply only to the petitioner companies until the next hearing.The disputed advisory, issued on April 16, 2026, followed concerns raised by the Union Ministry of AYUSH regarding possible adverse health effects linked to the use of Ashwagandha leaves.

During the hearing, counsel for the petitioners argued that the companies had been manufacturing Ashwagandha-based products for nearly three decades through licensed contract manufacturers and that no major safety concerns had emerged so far.

The petitioners contended that Ashwagandha products were being manufactured in accordance with standards prescribed under the Food Safety and Standards (Health Supplements, Nutraceuticals and Functional Foods) Regulations, 2016, framed under the Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006.They further argued that the FSSAI could not prohibit the use of Ashwagandha leaves through a mere advisory without formally amending the existing regulations.According to the petitioners, the advisory would severely affect production, exports and business operations, leading to substantial financial losses.The Union Ministry of AYUSH had earlier expressed concern that Ashwagandha leaves contain high levels of "withaferin-A", a compound reportedly associated with liver toxicity, gastrointestinal distress and adverse effects on the nervous system. Based on these concerns, authorities issued the advisory cautioning against the use of Ashwagandha leaves and extracts in food products.Following arguments from both sides, the High Court granted interim protection to the petitioner companies pending further hearing of the matter.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has granted interim relief to noted television director T. N. Seetharam and others by staying criminal proceedings initiated against them in connection with a land dispute case in Doddaballapur taluk.A vacation single-judge bench of Justice M.G.S. Kamal passed the interim order while hearing a criminal petition filed by Seetharam and his sister K. S. Vijayalakshmi seeking quashing of the FIR registered at the Doddaballapur Rural Police Station.During the hearing, counsel for the petitioners argued that the allegations made in the complaint were false and arose out of an ongoing property dispute. The lawyer submitted that Seetharam, a well-known television personality and legal professional, had been wrongly implicated in the case and sought an immediate stay on further proceedings.Opposing the plea, counsel representing the complainant argued that the investigation was still at a preliminary stage and that granting a stay would obstruct a proper probe into the allegations.After hearing both sides, the bench ordered an interim stay on the FIR and related proceedings against Seetharam and the other accused.The dispute pertains to over five acres of land spread across different survey numbers in Hasanaghatta village of Doddaballapur taluk. Complainant M.A. Aravind Kumar alleged that despite the land being sold and in his possession, Seetharam and others entered the disputed property on May 1 along with a large group of people.

Residents demand action against rising stray dog threat

SRINIVASPURA

Residents of Zakir Hussain Mohalla and nearby areas in Srinivaspura have expressed concern over the increasing number of stray dogs and questioned the effectiveness of the Animal Birth Control (ABC) programme being implemented by the municipal authorities.

Locals said stray dogs are frequently seen roaming in groups across residential streets, creating fear among pedestrians, vehicle riders, women, and children. Residents claimed that the situation has become more serious during the summer holidays, as children playing outside their homes are facing a greater risk of dog attacks. Several people also reported incidents of stray dogs chasing moving vehicles at night.

Citizens questioned whether the ABC programme, which includes sterilisation and anti-rabies vaccination of stray dogs, is being carried out properly in the town. According to residents, repeated cases of female stray dogs giving birth in areas such as Zakir Hussain Mohalla, Rajaji Road, Azad Road, and Gaffar Khan Mohalla indicate that the programme is not being implemented effectively.

People also complained about continuous barking and disturbances during nighttime, saying the growing stray dog population has created fear among children and elderly residents. Improper waste disposal has been identified by locals as another major reason for the increase in stray dogs. Residents alleged that food waste dumped near hotels and market areas attracts stray animals and leads to large gatherings of dogs in public places.

The public has urged the municipal council to strengthen sterilisation and vaccination drives and ensure proper implementation of the ABC programme across all wards of Srinivaspura. Residents also demanded improved solid waste management, scientific garbage disposal, and regular public awareness programmes on rabies prevention and stray animal management.

District Collector Dr. Kumar has directed all urban local bodies in Mandya district to strictly implement the Solid Waste Management Rules-2026, which came into effect from April 1 following Supreme Court orders and Central Government notification.

He issued the instructions during a review meeting with municipal commissioners and chief officers held at the District Collector's office. The Collector said the new rules must be enforced without exception and citizens must be made fully aware about proper waste disposal practices.

Dr. Kumar said maintaining a clean and healthy environment is the responsibility of all, and improper waste management poses serious risks to public health and the environment. He directed officials to intensify awareness campaigns and ensure public participation in cleanliness drives.

Under the new rules, mandatory segregation of waste into four categories has been introduced: wet waste, dry waste, sanitary waste, and special care waste such as batteries, bulbs, expired medicines, and paint cans. Officials were instructed to ensure proper collection, tra nsport, processing, and disposal systems for each category.

He also ordered identification and registration of all bulk waste generators and instructed that waste should be processed at the source wherever possible. Strict penalties, including fines and disconnection of water supply, were suggested for violations.

The Collector emphasized regular removal of garbage hotspots in cities, promotion of recycling of dry waste, and encouragement of household-level composting and biogas production. Daily door-to-door waste collection was also stressed.

In a separate review meeting, Dr. Kumar directed officials to complete upgrading works of wastewater treatment plants in Mandya city by the end of August to prevent sewage from entering Guthalu-Yattagadahalli lake.

He said the upgrade is being carried out after concerns over wastewater pollution, including inspection by the Lokayukta. The project is funded with ₹30 crore from the National Green Tribunal compensation fund. The treatment plants at Guthalu and Chikkegowdanadoddi have capacities of 9.52 MLD and 8.90 MLD respectively. Several sewerage rehabilitation and new treatment projects across Mandya, Maddur, Nagamangala, Pandavapura, Malavalli and Srirangapatna municipalities are under various stages of tendering and execution.

Officials said multiple DPRs have been prepared and works are expected to begin soon to strengthen the city's sewage and drainage infrastructure and improve environmental protection across the district.

Failure to protect students' rights; APU faces criticism

BENGALURU

Arvind from People's Union Civil Liberties-Karnataka (PUCL-K), Dr. Mohan Rao, a Professor from Jua University held a press meet on Friday, speaking on the case of Akhil Bharatiya Vidarathi Parishad's (ABVP) vigilante violence against Azim Premji University (APU) on 24th February, 2026.

The University's failure to protect the students' right to a safe campus was criticised as they filed a FIR registered agai nst SPARK-APU, a student-led group that organised reading circles, and formed a Special Disciplinary Committee which led to the suspension of a student for 2 years. In response, various civil society organisations visited the University on 23rd March, 2026, to meet with the students to understand the details of the incident.

The team included members such as Aishwarya R. – People's Union for Civil Liberties-Karnataka (PUCL-K) and Veeresh – All India Students Federation (AISF). This broug ht attention to the increasing threats of disciplinary action by the University administration and an environment of fear in the APU campus as expressed by the students and faculty members in the fact- finding report. The ABVP mob attack took place in the context in which educational institutions across the country have been witnessing similar attempts at curbing students' expression as seen on 20th February, 2026.

All India Students' Federation, the student wing of CPI organised a study circle in Dr. Hari Singh Gour University (Sagar, Madhya Pradesh) aimed at promoting scientific temper and rational debate but was interrupted by a mob of 100 to 150 people allegedly from the ABVP and RSS, who brutally assaulted the participants.

The fact-checking team recommends that the University withdraw all charges against SPARK-APU and remove the restrictions on students' activities which aim at promoting critical thinking and the police must ensure a fair investigation and action taken against the ABVP vigilante mob.

The District Magistrate urged parents to ensure polio vaccination for all eligible children, stressing continued vigilance

Swaroop T.K. reviews polio immunisation campaign plans

UDUPI

District Magistrate Swaroop T.K. has instructed officials to ensure that no child between the ages of 0 to 5 is left out during the upcoming Pulse Polio Vaccination Programme scheduled for June 28 across Udupi district.

She issued the directions while chairing the District Vaccination Task Force Coordination Committee meeting held at the District Magistrate's Office, Rajatadri in Manipal on Thursday.

The District Magistrate urged parents to cooperate with health authorities and ensure that every eligible child receives the polio vaccine without fail. She said the programme remains essential despite India being declared polio-free by the World Health Organization in 2014, as neighboring countries still report cases.

She added that continued vaccination is necessary as a precautionary measure to prevent any risk of re-emergence. She also emphasized that officials must ensure strict implementation of polio and measles vaccination drives without negligence.

Swaroop T.K. said it is the responsibility of field-level staff to convince families who hesitate or refuse vaccination and ensure full coverage of all children. She noted that the district achieved over 103 percent coverage in the previous Pulse Polio round, with more than 65,000 children vaccinated successfully.

For the upcoming drive, officials have identified 63,524 children aged 0 to 5 years. A total of 668 vaccination centres, 18 transit booths, 5 mobile teams, 1,363 field teams, and 155 supervisors have been deployed to ensure smooth implementation.

She directed that vaccination centres be set up in anganwadis and schools, and special booths be arranged at railway stations and highway toll points since the programme falls on a Sunday. She also instructed MESCOM officials to ensure uninterrupted electricity supply for safe vaccine storage.The District Magistrate stressed the need for increased awareness among migrant families, construction workers, and daily wage earners so that no child is missed. She called for extensive publicity through social media. She added that all departments, including health, education, transport, police, railways, and women and child development, must work in coordination for the success of the programme.

Officials also discussed HPV vaccination awareness for adolescent girls aged 14 to 15 years to prevent cervical cancer, and urged parents to support the initiative for better public health outcomes in the district.

Pollution threatens centuries-old fish-catching festival in Surathkal

UDUPI

A unique folk tradition of Tulunadu is slowly fading away under the shadow of pollution, as the once vibrant Chelairu Khandevu fish-catching festival in Surathkal has now been reduced to a symbolic ritual attended by only a handful of people.

The traditional event, held every year in the Khandevu region of the Nandini River on May 15, shares a deep cultural and spiritual connection with Shri Dharmarasu Ullaya Daivasthana. A similar celebration is also observed during the April Sankranti at Baggundi Lake in Kulai.

For generations, villagers and relatives from different places gathered to catch fish in the river and lake as part of the annual celebration. Families working in cities like Mumbai and Bengaluru would often return to their native village specifically to participate in the festival, which symbolised community bonding, tradition and devotion.

Pvt bus operators likely to hike fares by 5% amid fuel price rise

UDUPI

Private bus operators in Karnataka are likely to increase passenger fares by around 5 percent following the recent hike in petrol and diesel prices by the Centre and the state government. Karnataka State Bus Owners' Federation president Kuyiladi Suresh Nayak said a final decision would be taken after a meeting in Bengaluru next week.

Speaking in Udupi, Suresh Nayak said operating buses at the current diesel prices has become financially difficult for private operators. He pointed out that the state government had earlier increased fuel prices by ₹3 per litre, and the Centre has now further raised rates amid growing tensions and uncertainty in the Middle East and the global oil market.

"Despite repeated fuel price hikes, bus fares had not been revised till now. However, the present situation has made a fare increase unavoidable," he said.

According to him, existing transport regulations allow an increase of 25 paise per kilometre per passenger based on toll charges and cess payments. The federation is expected to submit a formal proposal to the Karnataka government seeking approval for the revised fare structure.

The proposed fare revision is expected to impact thousands of daily commuters who rely on private buses, particularly in coastal and rural regions where such services form a crucial mode of transportation.

Bus operators have argued that apart from diesel price hikes, maintenance costs, toll fees, spare parts expenses and employee wages have also gone up considerably over the last few years. They claim that continuing operations without revising fares could push several operators into losses.

Suresh Nayak said the federation would hold detailed discussions with member associations during the Bengaluru meeting before taking a final call on the percentage of increase and implementation date.

HUNSUR

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah has assured that the long-pending Hunsur Hi-Tech Hospital will be inaugurated soon by Health Minister Dinesh Gundu Rao after completion of final works.

The Chief Minister inspected the newly built Hi-Tech Hospital located near Arasu Bhavan on the National Highway in Hunsur and reviewed the progress of the project. The hospital has been constructed at a cost of over ₹31.5 crore.

Speaking to reporters, Siddaramaiah said the foundation for the hospital was laid during the tenure of then MLA H.P. Manjunath. He noted that the project initially moved slowly after the change of government, but work has now been accelerated after the present government released an additional grant of ₹9.5 crore. He said the remaining construction work will be completed within 15 days and the pending ₹1.50 crore grant will also be released soon. Tenders for required medical equipment have already been called, and installation of machines is expected to be completed within the next two months, followed by testing and commissioning.

The Chief Minister also responded to questions on national issues, stating that the NEET examination system has shortcomings due to outsourcing to private agencies without proper accountability. He added that the government supports religious freedom and will not impose restrictions on clothing or practices of any community.

He said he would continue to respond to public issues like an elected representative and assured that he would always stand with the people in their difficulties and progress.

He also criticised the opposition, alleging that unnecessary political debates were distracting attention from important issues such as exam irr egularities affecting students. He said that the govern ment should focus on the future of children and education al reforms instead of creating divisions. Referring to national entrance exams like NEET, he said that education-related con cerns should be handled carefully to protect students' interests and reduce stress among families. Manjunath clarified that he has no direct involvement with the hospital but express ed hope that poor patients from the region would receive quality treatment with out addi tional burden. He said access to affordable heal thcare shoul d remain a priority. MOSQUITO CONTROL DRIVE

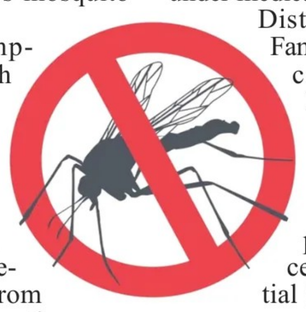
Dengue awareness drive begins across district

CHIKKABALLAPURA

National Dengue Day is being observed in the district from May 16 to June 1 with the theme "Community participation for dengue control: Check, clean and cover," aimed at increasing public awareness and preventing the spread of mosquito-borne diseases.

Health officials said dengue and chikungunya are infectious diseases spread through the bite of infected female Aedes mosquitoes. They warned that the diseases can spread quickly in areas where stagnant water allows mosquito breeding.



Common symptoms include high fever, severe headache, pain behind the eyes, and intense muscle and joint pain. In severe cases, patients may experience bleeding from the gums, nose, mouth, or develop red spots on the skin. Officials stressed that there is no specific vaccine or direct cure for dengue, and treatment is given based on symptoms under medical supervision.

District Health and Family Welfare Officer Dr. Mahesh Kumar said early diagnosis and immediate treatment at nearby government hospitals or health centres are essential if symptoms appear.

He also highlighted that mosquito control is the most effective prevention method. Citizens were advised to regularly empty or cover water containers such as drums, cement tanks, barrels, clay pots, tyres, and buckets to prevent mosquito breeding.

People have been urged to use mosquito nets while sleeping, install window screens, and use repellents like coils or neem smoke. Authorities also advised the public to ensure that rainwater does not collect in discarded items like bottles and tyres around homes.

Health officials said awareness programmes will continue across the district during the campaign period.

Bus stand toilet crisis sparks public anger

HUNSUR

Public anger has grown in Hunsur after complaints that the toilet facility at the rural bus stand has been without water for the past four days, causing severe inconvenience to commuters and local residents. The issue has drawn criticism from citizens who say basic sanitation services are being ignored by local authorities.

Satyappa, President of MAS Foundation, said Hunsur serves as a sub-division centre for six taluks and sees heavy public movement every day. He said the bus stand toilet is widely used but has been left in an unhygienic condition, forcing people to struggle for basic facilities.

He blamed administrative negligence and said elected representatives are failing to address essential civic problems. He alleged that instead of focusing on local development issues, some representatives are busy with political activities elsewhere, leaving civic services unattended.

Residents also pointed out that many elderly people and patients visiting the bus stand depend heavily on toilet facilities, making the situation more serious. They said the lack of water supply has made the facility unusable and unsanitary.

Satyappa criticised municipal officials for inaction and said public tax money is being collected but not reflected in basic infrastructure maintenance. He demanded immediate restoration of water supply and proper maintenance of the toilet facility.

He warned that if the issue is not resolved quickly, residents and activists will stage a protest in front of the Hunsur Municipal Council, holding elected representatives responsible for negligence in public service delivery and poor civic management in the town.

Bhajanlal Sharma Calls for Mass Movement on Energy Conservation

Rajasthan Chief Minister Bhajanlal Sharma on Friday urged citizens to transform energy conservation and fuel saving into a large-scale public movement driven by active people's participation.

JAIPUR

Addressing industry leaders, policymakers, and investors at the conclave, Sharma said Rajasthan has emerged as a leading state in solar energy production and is steadily strengthening its position as a major energy supplier in the country.

The Chief Minister described energy conservation as the most economical, effective, and sustainable alternative to increasing energy production. According to him, careful and disciplined consumption of resources is essential for achieving long-term energy self-reliance. He noted that responsible use of energy not only reduces costs but also helps protect the environment and strengthen national energy security.

Referring to Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Nation First vision, Sharma said the Rajasthan government is actively promoting fuel conservation measures across departments. He mentioned that guidelines have already been issued for the restrained use of government vehicles and broader implementation of energy-saving practices.

In a symbolic gesture supporting sustainable transportation, Sharma arrived at the event in an electric vehicle.

The move was intended to send a clear message about the importance of reducing fuel consumption, cutting carbon emissions, and encouraging the adoption of environmentally friendly technologies.

The Chief Minister strongly advocated the use of electric vehicles, saying they play a crucial role in reducing pollution and combating climate change. He stated that widespread EV adoption could significantly lower carbon emissions and contribute to environmental protection efforts while helping India reduce its dependence on fossil fuels.

Sharma emphasized that saving petrol and diesel has become a national necessity as the world faces rising energy demands and environmental concerns. He said future energy security can only be ensured through investment in clean, renewable, and alternative energy solutions.Inviting domestic and international investors to participate in Rajasthan's rapidly growing energy sector, Sharma said the state is moving quickly towards becoming a major energy powerhouse in line with the national vision of a Developed India by 2047. He assured industries and businesses that Rajasthan offers a highly investment-friendly environment backed by supportive government policies. The Chief Minister added that large-scale investment proposals in solar energy, wind power, bio-energy, pumped storage, and green hydrogen projects demonstrate growing confidence in Rajasthan's energy policies.

'Govt Limits Fuel Price Hike despite Oil Losses amid Global Crude Surge'

NEW DELHI

The Central government's decision to raise petrol and diesel prices by only Rs 3 per litre is aimed at protecting consumers from the full impact of soaring global crude oil prices, senior officials said on Friday.

According to government sources, the recent fuel price hike represents only a small fraction of the actual financial burden currently faced by state-owned oil marketing companies. Officials stated that under-recoveries on petrol are estimated at nearly Rs 26 per litre, while diesel under-recoveries have reached around Rs 82 per litre due to the sharp increase in global crude oil prices.

The government-owned oil companies Indian Oil Corporation, Bharat Petroleum, and Hindustan Petroleum are reportedly sharing the burden along with the Centre. Officials indicated that together they are currently absorbing losses of nearly Rs 1,000 crore every day in order to shield consumers from sudden fuel price shocks.

Sources said the Centre's broader strategy is focused on balancing economic stability with consumer protection. A sharp rise in fuel prices could trigger widespread inflation across sectors by increasing transportation expenses, pushing up food prices, and placing additional pressure on household budgets at a time when domestic demand remains sensitive.

Government officials stressed that the intention is to avoid passing the entire burden of global oil price increases directly to citizens. Instead, authorities are attempting to soften the impact through controlled price adjustments while absorbing part of the financial losses through subsidies and public sector support. The Centre is also continuing efforts to protect the agriculture sector from rising international commodity prices. Sources said the government is already bearing a fertiliser subsidy burden estimated at around Rs 2.25 lakh crore to prevent higher input costs for farmers. Officials believe that protecting agriculture remains essential for maintaining food security and controlling inflation.According to sources, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has been encouraging policies aimed at reducing fuel consumption and lowering India's dependence on imported energy rather than relying on steep retail fuel price hikes. The government's current approach focuses on improving energy efficiency and promoting gradual behavioural changes in fuel usage patterns.

Officials also highlighted concerns about India's rising import bill due to elevated crude oil and gold prices. Government estimates suggest that the country spends nearly Rs 12-15 lakh crore annually on crude oil imports. Every $10 increase in crude oil prices adds approximately $13-14 billion to India's import burden, significantly affecting the economy and trade balance.

Amit Shah will inaugurate a fully automated milk processing and packaging plant of Madhur Dairy in Gujarat's Gandhinagar district on May 17.

Amit Shah to Inaugurate Madhur Dairy's Automated Milk Plant in Gujarat

GANDHINAGAR

The new plant has been established at Dashela village by the Gandhinagar District Cooperative Milk Producers' Union Limited. According to officials, the facility has an initial milk processing capacity of 2.5 lakh litres per day, which can later be expanded to 5 lakh litres daily depending on future demand and procurement levels.

With the inauguration of the new facility, Madhur Dairy's total milk processing and packaging capacity will rise to 5 lakh litres per day, making it the largest cooperative milk union in Gandhinagar district. Officials believe the expansion will play an important role in strengthening the dairy cooperative network and supporting thousands of milk producers connected to the organisation.

Several senior leaders are expected to attend the inauguration programme along with Amit Shah. These include Bhupendra Patel, Shankar Chaudhary, Harsh Sanghavi, Jagdish Vishwakarma and Jitu Vaghani.

Officials stated that the expanded infrastructure will allow Madhur Dairy to process the entire milk procurement from dairy farmers in Gandhinagar district more efficiently. This is expected to benefit farmers by ensuring better and more stable prices for milk supplied to the cooperative.Consumers are also likely to gain from the expansion through improved availability of quality milk and a wider range of dairy products marketed under the Madhur and Amul brands. The increased production capacity will also support manufacturing requirements for the Gujarat Cooperative Milk Marketing Federation, which oversees Amul's nationwide operations.

Questions will be tougher this time: Students on NEET-UG 2026 re-examination

JODHPUR

After the National Testing Agency (NTA) announced the re-examination date for the National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test (Undergraduate) 2026, students expressed the fear that the questions would be tougher to crack this time as that usually happens after a paper leak. They stated that it would require them to be mentally stronger and prepare even harder than before, for the test.

Amrit Gehlot expressed the hope that the paper leak incident would not get repeated when the exam is held again.

If the paper gets leaked again then we will stand to lose a year.

We will again have to bear the financial burden of travelling, rent and attending coaching classes.

Gehlot further said that such instances are particularly difficult for students who belong to Economically Weaker Sections. Our parents are still hopeful for us, he said.

Expressing his apprehensions he said: We have prepared well but due to this leak this time the questions might be more difficult.

Another student, Yogita, added: Our confidence took a blow when the news of the leak came out.

She further said that even though the exam is being held again, the confidence and hope are not the same as before.

NEET aspirant Varsha mentioned that this time the students have to make themselves mentally stronger and prepare harder.

It will be difficult mentally but still we have to do it. More so because whenever an exam is held for the second time, the questions are tougher, she said.

Another student, Akshit Kumar said: The last exam had gone well for me but I was disappointed after coming to know that the paper had been leaked.He said that many students were even aiming for a perfect score after comparing their responses in the exam with the answer key. Kumar also expressed disappointment with the NTA, saying the agency should have been more careful since the irregularities in the exam have taken place repeatedly.

Calls for pilot vehicles reduced in two days after fuel-saving measures implemented

GANDHINAGAR

The Gujarat government has reported a reduction in pilot vehicle calls to the Home Department over the last two days after introducing measures linked to Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal for fuel conservation and reduced official travel.Ahead of the Cabinet meeting on Friday, Deputy Chief Minister Harsh Sanghavi said the decline in pilot vehicle deployments had already resulted in significant savings in fuel usage and manpower, as the state administration intensified efforts to curb unnecessary movement.

Overall, there has been a reduction of 126 calls in two days, Sanghavi said while responding to questions on the impact of the new measures.

He said that even by conservative estimates, the reduction could translate into savings of around 5,000 kilometres of petrol and diesel consumption.

If we take an average of 25 to 50 kilometres for each call, then at least 5,000 kilometres.

MODI'S FIVE-NATION VISIT

BJP Leaders Back PM Modi's Five-Nation Tour

NEW DELHI

Leaders of the Bharatiya Janata Party on Friday expressed confidence that Prime Minister Narendra Modi's ongoing five-nation tour will strengthen India's diplomatic position and help address the global fuel crisis triggered by tensions in West Asia.

Prime Minister Modi's foreign tour, scheduled from May 15 to May 20, includes visits to the United Arab Emirates, Netherlands, Sweden, Norway and Italy. The visit aims to strengthen India's partnerships in several key sectors, including energy, defence, trade, technology, and green transition initiatives.

Speaking about the significance of the tour, BJP Member of Parliament Praveen Khandelwal said the Prime Minister's visit comes at an important time amid rising global tensions and uncertainty in energy markets. He stated that Modi would strongly present India's perspective during discussions with foreign leaders, further enhancing India's global standing and influence.

Khandelwal added that India's diplomatic role on the world stage has become increasingly important under Modi's leadership and that the tour would reinforce the country's strategic relationships with major international partners.

Bihar minister Ram Kripal Yadav highlighted the importance of the UAE in India's foreign policy, noting that a large number of Indians live and work there.

Priyanka Raises Concern Over NEET Aspirant's Death After Exam Cancellation

Congress MP Priyanka Gandhi Vadra said repeated irregularities and corruption in competitive examinations are pushing students into severe mental distress.

LUCKNOW

According to the student's family, Ritik Mishra had appeared for the NEET-UG examination in Kanpur on May 3 and had returned home hopeful about his performance. However, after the examination was cancelled following allegations of a paper leak, he reportedly became mentally distressed and anxious about his future.

Priyanka Gandhi, in a post on social media platform X, conveyed condolences to the bereaved family and said the incident highlighted the enormous emotional burden being faced by lakhs of students preparing for competitive examinations across the country.

She stated that repeated incidents of exam irregularities and paper leaks were destroying the futures of young aspirants every year. Referring to the family's claims, she said Ritik had reportedly been under intense stress after the cancellation of the examination and questioned how long such incidents would continue without accountability.

The 22-year-old student allegedly died by suicide at his residence in Lakhimpur Kheri. Local authorities have launched an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the incident.

The controversy erupted after the National Testing Agency cancelled the NEET-UG 2026 examination conducted on May 3 following allegations of question paper leaks from multiple centres. The examination is now scheduled to be reconducted on June 21.

The investigation into the alleged paper leak has been handed over to the Central Bureau of Investigation. The agency is probing how the question paper was leaked and distributed before the examination. Officials said several raids have been conducted across different states as part of the ongoing investigation.

So far, seven individuals have reportedly been arrested in connection with the alleged leak racket.

Investigators are examining possible links between organised groups and those involved in circulating the examination paper illegally.

The controversy has intensified concerns about the credibility and security of large-scale competitive examinations in India.

Students, parents, and education experts have increasingly demanded stronger safeguards to prevent leaks and ensure fair evaluation systems.

Amid growing criticism, Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan announced on Friday that NEET would shift to a computer-based examination format from next year.

IIT Roorkee Develops High-Resolution Climate Dataset

New Delhi

Researchers at Indian Institute of Technology Roorkee on Friday developed and released an open-access high-resolution climate projection dataset, named INDRA-CMIP6, aimed at helping India improve regional climate adaptation, disaster preparedness, and climate risk assessment. Developed by researchers from the Department of Hydrology at IIT Roorkee and published in the journal Nature Portfolio's 'Scientific Data', the dataset provides daily rainfall and temperature projections for the Indian subcontinent at a spatial resolution of nearly 10 kilometres. The initiative seeks to address a major challenge associated with global climate models, whose coarse-scale projections often fail to accurately represent India's complex terrain, monsoon systems, and regional.

CBI Court Gives 7-Year Jail To Ex-BOI Manager In Fraud Case

Bhopal

A Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) court in Bhopal has sentenced a former Senior Branch Manager of Bank of India (BOI) and a private individual to seven years of Rigorous Imprisonment (RI) in connection with a bank fraud case involving fraudulent sanction and diversion of loan funds, officials said on Friday. The convicted accused have been identified as Piyush Chaturvedi, the then Senior Branch Manager of Bank of India's Misrod branch in Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh and Mohan Singh Solanki, a private person. Kiren Rijiju Seeks Clarity on Rahul Gandhi's Foreign Trips and Funding Sources

NEW DELHI

Speaking to the media, Rijiju stated that all Members of Parliament are required to follow specific protocols before travelling abroad. According to him, lawmakers must inform the Secretariat of either the Lok Sabha or Rajya Sabha at least three weeks in advance before undertaking foreign visits. He said the rules are important from both administrative and security perspectives.The Union Minister remarked that the questions surrounding Rahul Gandhi's foreign travel had become significant because of concerns regarding transparency and compliance with parliamentary procedures. He also described the alleged lack of disclosure regarding some overseas visits as worrisome.

The controversy intensified after BJP MP Sambit Patra accused Rahul Gandhi of having a mismatch between his declared income and the estimated expenditure incurred on foreign travel over the past two decades. Patra claimed that while the Congress leader had declared income of around Rs 11 crore, he had allegedly spent nearly Rs 60 crore on 54 foreign trips across several countries in Europe, the Middle East, and Asia.Rijiju said that if the expenses incurred during foreign travel exceed the income declared in election affidavits, the matter naturally becomes important for tax authorities to examine. He added that whether the funds involved were disclosed or undisclosed, all such expenditures should be properly accounted for.

The minister maintained that answers regarding the source of funding should come directly from the Indian National Congress. He said transparency is necessary, especially for public representatives who are expected to maintain accountability in both financial and official matters.

When asked about reports suggesting secrecy surrounding some of Rahul Gandhi's visits abroad, Rijiju stressed that every Parliamentarian is expected to follow established procedures without exception. He said MPs are required to disclose the purpose of their travel, destinations visited, and official engagements undertaken during such visits.

Referring to destinations such as Muscat, Thailand, and Vietnam, Rijiju said public representatives should clearly explain why they travelled, whom they met, and whether proper protocols were followed. He noted that ministers and MPs from the ruling side also disclose details of their official foreign visits. The latest controversy gained attention after reports regarding Rahul Gandhi's alleged visit to Oman earlier this month.

Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju on Friday backed the Bharatiya Janata Party's demand for transparency regarding Leader of Opposition Rahul Gandhi's foreign trips and the alleged funding behind them.

Man Kills Brother-In-Law with Sharp Weapon, Stone in Ranchi; Arrested

RANCHI

A 50-year-old man was allegedly murdered by his brother-in-law with a sharp-edged weapon and a stone following a domestic dispute in Jharkhand's Ranchi district, police said on Friday.

The shocking incident took place in Nichetoli village under the Tamar police station limits. The deceased has been identified as Gajendra Singh, a resident of Runia village in neighbouring Khunti district.

According to police, Gajendra had arrived at his in-laws' house along with his wife. Trouble reportedly began after the accused, identified as Bhupesh Khandit, allegedly took control of all the household utensils and refused to allow cooking at the house, insisting that the guests return to their village as he did not want them there.

The dispute escalated on Friday morning when Bhupesh's younger sister asked him for utensils to prepare food for the family and fetch water. During the heated argument with his sister during which Bhupesh refused to give the utensils, he allegedly attacked Gajendra repeatedly with a 'Dauli', a locally used sharp-edged weapon, police said.

The accused then allegedly smashed Gajendra's head with a large stone lying in the courtyard, killing him on the spot.Police said Bhupesh's younger sister also suffered minor injuries while trying to intervene and save her husband.

Assam CM Promises Expanded Development Push After NDA's Victory

GUWAHATI

Addressing reporters after the election results, Sarma said the overwhelming public support had significantly increased the government's responsibility towards the people of Assam.

He stated that the strong mandate reflected public confidence in the work carried out by the government over the past five years and added that the administration would now work with even greater commitment to accelerate development across the state.

According to the Chief Minister, the new government's vision for Assam would be much larger than the agenda presented during the 2021 Assembly elections.

He pointed out that the earlier elections had taken place during the difficult period of the COVID-19 pandemic, which had forced the government to focus on more immediate and limited priorities.

Sarma said the state government now has more experience and confidence after implementing several welfare programmes, infrastructure projects, and investment initiatives during its previous term. He added that the administration intends to use this experience to expand development efforts and deliver more comprehensive results for the people.

The Chief Minister stressed that the BJP-led alliance would focus on converting election promises into practical outcomes while ensuring that development benefits reach all sections of society.

He said the government had committed to undertaking more work than during its previous tenure and expressed confidence that those promises would be implemented effectively on the ground.

The Bharatiya Janata Party-led NDA registered a decisive victory in the elections, significantly weakening opposition parties across the state. Political analysts described the result as a major endorsement of the ruling alliance's governance model and development narrative.

Sarma also highlighted the government's achievements in sectors such as road infrastructure, healthcare, education, industrial investment, and connectivity. He claimed Assam has witnessed rapid transformation in recent years due to large-scale development projects and improved administrative efficiency.

The Chief Minister said infrastructure expansion and welfare delivery would remain key priorities for the government in its new term. He added that improving employment opportunities, attracting investments, and strengthening public services would also receive major attention.

The NDA government has consistently promoted its record in improving law and order, expanding transport networks, and implementing social welfare schemes as some of its major accomplishments.

Thief Caught Red-Handed Stealing From Siddhivinayak Temple Donation Box

MUMBAI

A thief was caught red-handed on Friday morning while allegedly stealing money from the donation box at the famous Siddhivinayak Temple located in the Dombivli MIDC residential area, police officials said. The incident took place at around 6.34 A.M. and the entire act was captured on CCTV cameras installed inside the temple premises.

According to information, the accused entered the temple pretending to be a devotee coming to offer prayers. After spending some time inside the temple, he allegedly used a thin wooden stick coated with glue to pull currency notes out of the donation box without drawing attention from people around him.

Temple authorities later noticed suspicious activity while monitoring the CCTV footage. Acting promptly, temple treasurer Chandrashekhar Shinde, along with devotee Pandurang Ude, who had come to the temple for darshan early in the morning, confronted the accused and caught him on the spot before he could flee.

The accused was subsequently handed over to the Manpada Police station for further investigation and legal action.

Police sources said the accused had already managed to remove a considerable amount of cash from the donation box before being apprehended. Officials are currently questioning him to determine whether he was involved in similar theft incidents in the area in the past.

The Siddhivinayak Temple is regarded as a major centre of faith for residents of the Dombivli MIDC locality and attracts a large number of devotees every day, especially during morning and evening prayer hours.

Following the incident, local residents praised the alertness and courage shown by Chandrashekhar Shinde and Pandurang Ude in catching the accused.

Residents also expressed concern over the growing incidents of theft and house break-ins in the locality and urged the police administration to increase patrolling and strengthen security arrangements in the area to prevent such crimes in future.

MAJOR AEROSPACE LAUNCH

Def Min Launches Major Aerospace and Defence Projects

PUTTAPARTHI

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Friday laid the foundation stone for several major aerospace and defence projects in Andhra Pradesh, including the Aircraft Integration and Flight Test Centre of the Aeronautical Development Agency. The projects, launched in Sri Sathya Sai district and other locations in the state, are aimed at strengthening India's defence manufacturing capabilities and boosting indigenous aerospace development.

Rajnath Singh participated in the groundbreaking ceremony along with Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu. The event marked the launch of multiple strategic projects, including facilities related to naval systems, defence energetics, ammunition production, and drone technology infrastructure.

One of the most significant projects announced was the Advanced Medium Combat Aircraft (AMCA) programme being developed by the Aeronautical Development Agency under the Defence Research and Development Organisation. The AMCA project will function as the core centre for integration, development, and flight testing of India's indigenous fifth-generation fighter aircraft programme.

The AMCA facility is estimated to cost around Rs 15,803 crore and is expected to create employment opportunities for nearly 7,500 people over the course of the project. Officials stated that the initiative will significantly enhance India's self-reliance in advanced combat aviation technologies, including stealth systems, sophisticated avionics, and integrated warfare capabilities.

Spread across nearly 650 acres in Puttaparthi, the proposed complex will serve as a national hub for aircraft integration, validation, flight testing, and certification activities. The facility is expected to strengthen India's strategic aerospace infrastructure while reducing dependence on foreign testing and development systems.

In addition to the AMCA project, the foundation stone was also laid for a new naval systems manufacturing facility of Bharat Dynamics Limited at T. Sirasapalli in Anakapalli district. Groundbreaking ceremonies were also conducted.

Congo, Rwanda head for showdown over Francophonie top job

DAKAR

Democratic Republic of Congo and Rwanda are heading for a diplomatic battle over the leadership of the International Organisation of La Francophonie (OIF), with both fielding rival candidates as fighting grinds on in eastern Congo. Friday is the deadline to submit candidacies for the position of secretary general of the OIF, which represents more than 320 million French speakers worldwide and brings together 90 states and governments. The diplomatic contest is unfolding amid continued clashes between Congo and the Rwanda-backed AFC/M23 rebels, who seized control of the eastern cities of Goma and Bukavu in early 2025.

Trump Leaves China Without Major Trade Gains or Iran Breakthrough

U.S. President Trump concluded his two-day visit to China on Friday without securing major trade agreements or concrete assistance from Beijing in addressing the ongoing Iran conflict

BEIJING

Trump's visit marked the first trip by a sitting U.S. president to China since his previous visit in 2017. The visit was widely seen as an attempt to strengthen economic cooperation and improve Trump's domestic political standing ahead of crucial midterm elections in the United States. However, analysts noted that the meetings yielded more symbolic gestures than substantive policy achievements.

The summit featured grand displays of diplomacy, including military ceremonies, cultural tours, and high-level banquets. Trump repeatedly praised Xi's leadership and hospitality during the visit, describing the meetings as incredible and saying that a lot of good has come of it. The leaders held their final discussions at the Zhongnanhai leadership compound in Beijing, where they shared a formal lunch and discussed bilateral relations and international concerns.

Behind the scenes, however, serious strategic tensions remained unresolved. Chinese officials reportedly warned the United States against any actions involving Taiwan that could increase regional instability. Taiwan continues to be one of Beijing's most sensitive geopolitical concerns, and Xi is said to have cautioned Trump that mishandling the issue could lead to serious conflict.

Trade discussions also failed to deliver major breakthroughs. Trump had hoped to secure immediate economic victories, including aircraft deals involving Boeing, but no major announcements emerged from the summit. Instead, Xi focused on promoting long-term stability in U.S.-China trade relations and reducing tensions between the two global powers.

The ongoing conflict involving Iran also dominated discussions. Before Friday's talks, China's foreign ministry released a statement criticizing the war and calling for peace negotiations. The ministry stated that the conflict should never have happened and emphasized the importance of restoring global economic stability, particularly in energy markets affected by disruptions in the Strait of Hormuz.

Trump later stated that both leaders shared similar views regarding Iran, though Chinese officials stopped short of offering specific commitments. The United States had reportedly hoped China would use its influence over Iran to encourage a diplomatic settlement.

However, experts believe Beijing is unlikely to pressure Tehran aggressively because Iran remains an important strategic partner for China in balancing U.S. influence globally.

Foreign policy analysts observed that while both nations expressed support for stability and open trade routes, the summit lacked concrete agreements on Iran or broader geopolitical cooperation.

Hantavirus Outbreak Sparks Widespread Online Panic

LONDON

An outbreak of the Andes strain of hantavirus aboard a quarantined luxury cruise ship in the Atlantic has reignited fears reminiscent of the COVID-19 pandemic, prompting health authorities worldwide to carefully manage public communication.

The outbreak aboard the MV Hondius cruise ship has drawn widespread attention after several passengers reportedly died and others fell ill. The Andes strain of hantavirus, a rodent-borne disease known to cause severe respiratory illness, has alarmed many people due to its unfamiliar name and the memories it evokes of the early days of COVID-19.

Public health agencies are now attempting to strike a careful balance between informing citizens and preventing unnecessary fear. Officials say the virus is not new, and experts currently believe the chances of it triggering a pandemic are low. However, uncertainties surrounding the disease and rare instances of human-to-human transmission have increased public anxiety on social media platforms.

The health department in the U.S. state of Illinois recently addressed growing concerns through an online information campaign. In a social media post, the department urged people to avoid panic and read verified information before spreading fear among friends and family. The message reflected a broader strategy by health authorities to communicate more transparently and empathetically than they did during the COVID crisis.

According to health experts, the COVID-19 pandemic exposed major weaknesses in global public communication systems. Governments were often criticized for delayed responses, inconsistent policies, confusing health advice, and contradictory messaging regarding lockdowns, vaccines, and travel restrictions. These failures contributed to a decline in public trust toward health institutions in many countries.

Gianfranco Spiteri, emergencies lead at the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, said communication planning now occupies a significant part of the response effort. Officials are trying to explain why the hantavirus outbreak deserves attention while also reassuring people that the overall public threat remains limited.

Spiteri acknowledged the difficulties health agencies face in managing public perception. Some critics believe authorities are exaggerating the situation, while others argue officials are not taking the outbreak seriously enough. He stressed that all public messaging is being based strictly on available scientific evidence.

Despite those efforts, misinformation continues to spread rapidly online.

Russia and Ukraine swap 205 prisoners of war each

KYIV/MOSCOW

Russia and Ukraine swapped 205 prisoners of war each on Friday, part of an agreement linked to a three-day ceasefire earlier this month brokered by U.S. President Donald Trump.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy said it was the first step in a bigger prisoner of war swap, after Kyiv and Moscow had agreed to swap 1,000 POWs each under the terms of the agreement.

205 Ukrainians are home. Most of them had been in Russian captivity since 2022, Zelenskiy said on the Telegram app, posting pictures of smiling servicemen, many wrapped in Ukrainian flags.

Standing near a bus together with other soldiers and wrapped in the blue-and-yellow national flag, Yevhen Yeremenko, a serviceman, said he was happy to return after waiting for his freedom for four years.

It's a great pity it took so long. But some boys remain there. They are waiting and hoping. They hope that their motherland will get them out of there, he told Reuters as he devoured an apple. We must bring them back. Four years are difficult. Do not forget them! Ukraine's HUR military intelligence said that many of the returned servicemen had been held captive after the months-long defence of Mariupol, a southeastern port city that fell to Russia in 2022.

HUR said Kyiv had managed to bring home several dozen officers in addition to soldiers and sergeants. The two sides also conducted an exchange of those killed in the fighting, with Russia handing 526 bodies to Ukraine and receiving 41 in return.

Zelenskiy condemns Russia after strike on Kyiv apartment

KYIV

President Volodymyr Zelenskiy called on Friday for Moscow to be punished after laying red roses at the rubble of a Kyiv apartment building where a Russian missile strike killed 24 people, including three children.

Rescue workers ended search operations at the devastated building, which was struck this week during Russia's heaviest air attack on the Ukrainian capital this year.

Our first responders, worked non-stop for more than a day, Zelenskiy said on the Telegram app after visiting the site of the attack in Kyiv's Darnytskyi district, on the left bank of the Dnipro river, placing flowers and talking to rescue workers. The Russians practically levelled an entire section of the building with their missile, he said.

Russia, which began its full-scale invasion of Ukraine in February 2022, launched more than 1,500 drones and dozens of missiles in attacks across Ukraine this week over two consecutive days, Ukrainian officials said. Six people were killed in the attacks on Wednesday in western Ukraine, far from the front line.

A Russia like this can never be normalized; a Russia that deliberately destroys lives and hopes to remain unpunished. Pressure is needed, Zelenskiy said, reiterating appeals to allies to help Ukraine strengthen its air defences.

Kyiv officials announced a day of mourning on Friday to honour the victims, with national flags at half-mast across the city of three million people. All entertainment events were cancelled or postponed.

The Interior Ministry said the search and rescue operation at apartment building lasted more than 28 hours and hundreds of rescuers sifted through 3,000 cubic meters of rubble.

City officials said 24 bodies had been recovered from the rubble and about 30 people had been rescued alive. Nearly 50 people were wounded, and about 400 people required psychological support, the interior ministry said.

Zelenskiy has said that, according to initial analysis, a recently manufactured Russian Kh-101 missile struck the building.

US PLANS TO INDICT CUBA'S RAUL CASTRO, US DOJ OFFICIAL SAYS

WASHINTON

The United States plans to indict Cuba's Raul Castro, a U.S. Department of Justice official said. The timing of the potential indictment, which would need to be approved by a grand jury, was not immediately clear, but the official said it sounds imminent.

The potential indictment of the 94-year-old former president of Cuba and brother of Fidel is expected to focus on the downing of aircraft, the official said on condition of anonymity. CBS previously reported that the case relates to Cuba's deadly 1996 shootdown of planes operated by humanitarian group Brothers to the Rescue.

Representatives for Cuba's foreign ministry did not immediately respond to a request for comment outside of normal business hours.

A U.S. Justice Department spokesman did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Trump's administration has called Cuba's current communist-run government corrupt and incompetent and is seeking to replace it.

Australian court upholds ruling for transgender woman

SYDNEY

An Australian court upheld a landmark decision for a transgender woman on Friday, ruling that her exclusion from a female-only app because she appeared to be a man amounted to an act of discrimination.

The Full Federal Court of Australia also doubled damages against the Giggle for Girls app and its founder and CEO, Sall Grover, saying that the blocking of transgender woman Roxanne Tickle's account was direct discrimination. A lower court found in 2024 that it was an act of indirect discrimination.

Both findings have been hailed as groundbreaking decisions on gender identity and transgender rights in Australia.

I'm very pleased by the outcome of my case, and I hope that it assists trans and gender diverse people and their loved ones to heal, Tickle told reporters outside the courthouse.

I've brought my case to show trans people that you can be brave and that you can stand up for yourself. In the process, I surprised myself at how brave I could be, she said. Lawyers for Grover did not immediately respond to a request for comment. Grover, in posts on X, said she was devastated by the ruling, but flagged she would appeal to the High Court, Australia's top court.

Australia's Sex Discrimination Act prohibits providers of goods or services from discriminating against people on the basis of sex, sexual orientation, gender identity and marital status. Tickle's case was the first to legally test the gender identity protections, which were added in 2013.

The court's decision represents a significant affirmation of protections for trans people, said Alice Taylor, an assistant professor of law at Bond University.

STARMER LEADERSHIP CRISIS

Starmer Faces Leadership Crisis After Sr Min Resigns

LONDON

British Prime Minister Keir Starmer is facing mounting pressure over his leadership after senior cabinet minister Wes Streeting resigned from the government, accusing Starmer of lacking vision and direction.

The political crisis comes less than two years after Starmer led the Labour Party to a large parliamentary majority on promises of stability and competent governance after years of political turbulence in Britain. However, the party's poor performance in recent local elections has shaken confidence among lawmakers and party supporters, leading to growing questions about Starmer's future as leader.

Wes Streeting, who served as health minister, became the first senior member of Starmer's government to resign openly over concerns about the prime minister's leadership. In his resignation letter, Streeting stated that it had become clear Starmer would not lead Labour into the next general election. He argued that the party needed a broader debate about its future direction and leadership.

Streeting's criticism of Starmer was unusually direct. He accused the prime minister of allowing political drift to replace clear leadership at a time when the party needed strong vision and decisive action. According to Streeting, Labour was facing a vacuum where leadership and direction should exist. He also suggested that responsibility for political setbacks had too often fallen on others rather than the party leadership itself.

Although Streeting stopped short of launching a formal leadership challenge, political observers believe his resignation could encourage others within Labour to step forward. Reports indicate that several prominent figures are already positioning themselves in case a contest emerges. Among them is Andy Burnham, whose growing visibility has fuelled speculation about possible future ambitions.

A source close to Streeting reportedly said the former minister has enough support among lawmakers to mount a leadership campaign if necessary. However, the source added that Streeting would prefer Starmer to announce an orderly transition timetable rather than force an immediate internal battle.

Starmer responded quickly by expressing regret over Streeting's departure and defending his leadership. In a public statement, he argued that Labour still faced an important national mission and called on party members to unite against what he described as political chaos. He also moved swiftly to stabilize his government by appointing James Murray as the new health minister.

Sakshi beats World Champion Meenakshi in final

Sakshi Chaudhary secured her Commonwealth and Asian Games spots after stunning world champions Nikhat Zareen and Meenakshi Hooda in the national boxing trials

PATIALA

Shaking up Indian boxing, Sakshi Chaudhary secured her spot in the national squad for both the upcoming Commonwealth Games and the Asian Games. The rising star produced a dominant performance to defeat reigning world champion Meenakshi Hooda in the 51kg final at NIS Patiala.

Sakshi's historic victory caps off a sensational run in the national trials. Just a day prior, she pulled off one of the biggest upsets in the sport by knocking out two-time world champion Nikhat Zareen in the semifinals. Facing Meenakshi, the current 48kg world champion who moved up a weight class, Sakshi relied on her sharp movement and precise tactical skills to win by a unanimous 5-0 decision.

The results ensure a brand-new representative for India in the highly competitive 51kg category, as established stars like Nikhat and former world champion Nitu Ghanghas has both crashed out. By finishing as the runner-up, Meenakshi will now represent India at the upcoming World Boxing Cup in China this June.

Meanwhile, Sakshi earns direct passage to represent the nation at two massive quadrennial events later this year. She will pack her bags for the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow, Scotland, running from July 23 to August 2. Immediately following that, she will fly out to spearhead India's medal hopes at the Asian Games in Aichi-Nagoya, Japan, scheduled from September 19 to October 4. Other prominent boxers, including Sachin Siwach and Preeti Pawar, have also locked in their dual qualifications.

Furious Real Madrid fans clash with President Perez

MADRID

Real Madrid president Florentino Perez was caught in a heated verbal altercation with supporters during his team's 2-0 La Liga victory over Real Oviedo. The shocking incident highlights the growing toxic atmosphere brewing inside the historic Santiago Bernabeu stadium.

Television cameras captured a frustrated Perez aggressively arguing with spectators situated directly beneath the presidential box. The confrontation erupted right before kickoff as manager Alvaro Arbeloa's squad lined up for pre-match handshakes. Angry fans displayed protest banners reading "Florentino, go now" and "Florentino, guilty," which stadium security staff quickly confiscated. The tension follows a recent press conference where Perez announced upcoming leadership elections while insisting he is not a dictator.

The club's top management was not the only target of the crowd's wrath. Real Madrid players faced a monumental whistling campaign the moment they stepped out for warm-ups. Superstars Kylian Mbappe and Vinicius Junior were heavily booed, with fans jeering the Brazilian winger every single time he touched the football.

Supporters are furious after a disastrous, trophyless campaign that included a disappointing UEFA Champions League quarterfinal exit. While Real Madrid currently sits second in the league standings with 80 points, the achievement feels completely futile. Their fierce arch-rivals, Barcelona, have already mathematically secured back-to-back La Liga championships. Compounding the drama, Perez recently claimed his relationship with Barcelona is completely broken, openly accusing them of paying off referees for nearly two decades.

Federation Cup acts as Asian selection ground

NEW DELHI

India's aspiring young track and field stars have a massive opportunity ahead of them this month. The upcoming Federation Cup National Senior Athletics Competition will not just be about winning national glory, but will also serve as the official selection ground for a major international tournament. The national athletics federation announced that performances at the four-day event, scheduled to take place from May 22 to 25 in Ranchi, will determine who gets to represent the country on the continental stage. Specifically, the event will act as the selection trial for the highly anticipated, inaugural edition of the Asian U23 Athletics Championships.

According to the official guidelines released by the Asian Athletics Association, the eligibility criteria for the trials are strictly age-dependent. Young athletes who fall between the ages of 20 and 22 as of December 31, 2026, will be eligible to stake their claim for a spot in the national squad. This gives India's brightest young prospects a clear target to aim for as they fine-tune their preparations for the Ranchi meet. The stakes are incredibly high, as those who successfully make the cut will earn the honor of traveling to China.

Theegala shines early at tough PGA championship

NEWTOWN SQUARE

Indian-American golfer Sahith Theegala made a brilliant start at the 2026 PGA Championship, putting himself right in the thick of the action. Playing at the challenging Aronimink Golf Club, he carded a steady two-under-par 68 to finish the opening day just one shot behind the tournament leaders.

It was a grueling day for the world's best players, as tough course conditions made scoring incredibly difficult and forced several top stars to stumble. In contrast, Theegala showed remarkable focus and discipline. His calm approach helped him navigate the tricky greens, keeping him safe from the errors that ruined the scorecards of his rivals.

As the first round wrapped up, the top of the leaderboard looked packed and highly competitive. A group of seven players tied for the lead at three-under-par 67. This powerful pack is led by the defending champion and world number one, Scottie Scheffler, who showed exactly why he is the man to beat this week.

Joining Scheffler at the top are experienced champions and exciting new talents, including Martin Kaymer, Min Woo Lee, Stephan Jaeger, Ryo Hisatsune, Alex Smalley, and young South African star Aldrich Potgieter.

With so many skilled players crowded together at the top, the tournament is shaping up to be an absolute thriller. Theegala's strong start gives him a fantastic foundation, but he will need to maintain this high level of consistency to stay in the hunt for his first major title over the next three days.

Sreejesh questions new role after coaching exit

NEW DELHI

Legendary Indian goalkeeper PR Sreejesh has openly criticized Hockey India's coaching structure, raising serious concerns over its transparency and heavy reliance on foreign staff. His comments come amid a public dispute following his exit as the junior men's head coach.

Taking to social media, Sreejesh revealed that Hockey India President Dilip Tirkey offered him a role with a new "development team." However, the two-time Olympic bronze medalist claimed the federation failed to answer basic questions regarding the program's structure, player pool, or tournament roadmap. He also questioned if moving from chief coach to goalkeeper coach was a promotion or a demotion.

"After winning a Junior World Cup bronze as chief coach, making me a goalkeeper coach again, is that a promotion or a demotion?" Sreejesh asked.

The veteran highlighted that across four national teams, Hockey India employs six foreign coaches, three foreign fitness experts, and various overseas support staff. In contrast, only one Indian coach is assigned per team. Sreejesh also questioned why domestic greats like Sardar Singh and Rani Rampal are continuously overlooked for top roles due to a perceived lack of experience.

The friction intensified after Tirkey denied firing Sreejesh, claiming his contract simply ended in December 2025 before Frenchman Frederic Soyez was hired. Sreejesh strongly rejected this narrative. He emphasized that under his eighteen-month leadership, the junior national team secured five podium finishes in five tournaments, proving that Indian coaches are fully capable of delivering world-class results.

India's consumer watchdog fined Motion Education and Career Line Coaching fifteen lakh rupees for publishing misleading exam success advertisements.

Misleading IIT-JEE ads draw heavy financial penalties

NEW DELHI

India's consumer watchdog has cracked down on deceptive marketing practices in the education sector. The Central Consumer Protection Authority imposed heavy financial penalties on two prominent coaching institutes, Motion Education Private Limited and Career Line Coaching, for publishing misleading advertisements.

The authority fined Motion Education ten lakh rupees and hit Sikar-based Career Line Coaching with a five lakh rupee penalty. Officials discovered that both centers made exaggerated success claims regarding competitive IIT-JEE and NEET examinations. Crucially, they intentionally hid whether their top-ranking students were actually enrolled in expensive, full-time classroom courses or just brief test series.An in-depth investigation revealed that a majority of the successful students featured by Motion Education were part of a free online program rather than their paid residential tracks. Shockingly, the probe also found that some toppers only joined the institute after their exams were completely finished, yet the center claimed credit for their hard work without parental consent.

Similarly, Career Line Coaching came under fire for boasting about high selection numbers while hiding the fact that many achievers merely took cheap mock tests. The institute also gave conflicting statements to investigators about their actual annual results, rendering their promotional claims completely untruthful.Led by Chief Commissioner Nidhi Khare, the authority ordered both institutes to immediately halt these unfair trade practices and provide honest disclosures moving forward. In response to the strict penalties, both coaching companies have officially challenged the consumer watchdog's final orders before the National Commission.

India's ethanol capacity reaches 2,000 Cr liters

NEW DELHI

India's ethanol production capacity has skyrocketed to nearly 2,000 crore liters, significantly outstripping current domestic demand. A new report reveals that while capacity continues to expand rapidly, the market's ability to absorb the biofuel has hit a visible bottleneck.Currently, the required ethanol volume to meet the national E20 blending target stands at roughly 1,100 crore liters, alongside an additional 350 crore liters for non-fuel industrial use. Because the market only absorbs about 60 percent of what is offered, production plants face intense utilization pressures. Consequently, the industry is entering a consolidation phase, with factory operations expected.

ADANI ELECTRICITY URGES WISE SUMMER POWER USE

AHMEDABAD

Adani Electricity urged consumers to use power judiciously during the ongoing summer season. The company warned that heavily relying on cooling appliances could cause sudden spikes in electricity consumption, inadvertently pushing households into much more expensive tariff slabs. As intense heat waves sweep across the region, households naturally increase their usage of air conditioners, refrigerators, and fans. The utility provider emphasized that making mindful choices can dramatically lower monthly expenses while simultaneously supporting environmental sustainability. To keep bills under control, the company recommended optimizing air conditioner settings by keeping temperatures around 24 degrees Celsius. Using ceiling fans alongside air conditioning can also maximize overall cooling efficiency. Additionally, residents should utilize programmable thermostats and upgrade to appliances boasting high energy-efficiency ratings. The statement also focused on simple, cost-free lifestyle habits. Adani Electricity advised opening windows during cooler mornings and evenings to enhance natural cross-ventilation, while drawing curtains during the hottest afternoon hours to block direct sunlight. Furthermore, the company highlighted the hidden costs of "phantom" energy. Many modern electronic devices and chargers continue to draw power even when switched completely off, so completely unplugging them is highly recommended. An official spokesperson for the Adani Group company reiterated that small behavioral changes can add up to significant financial savings over time.

Maharashtra slashes jet fuel tax to 7%

MUMBAI

The Maharashtra government announced a major reduction in value-added tax on aviation turbine fuel, dropping the rate to 7 percent from 18 percent. This emergency fiscal move aims to provide immediate financial relief to airlines struggling under the weight of soaring global fuel prices and heavy operational costs.

According to an official notification from the state finance department, the revised tax rate took effect immediately on May 15. The tax holiday will remain active for exactly six months, wrapping up on November 14, 2026. This significant eleven-percentage-point cut is expected to dramatically lower refueling expenses for carriers operating across the state.

Jet fuel stands as the single largest expenditure for Indian aviation companies, routinely swallowing nearly 35 to 40 percent of their entire operational budget. Currently, domestic airlines are facing immense financial pressure due to rising global crude oil prices, extended flight paths, and sudden airspace closures linked closely to ongoing geopolitical conflicts in the Middle East.

Civil Aviation Minister Ram Mohan Naidu Kinjarapu praised the timely intervention, thanking the Maharashtra government for supporting the struggling industry. The ministry has been actively holding high-level meetings with several heavily taxed states, including West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, and Delhi, to push for similar tax relief.

By aggressively slashing these rates, Maharashtra has made its primary airports in Mumbai, Pune, and Nagpur vastly more competitive. For comparison, Delhi currently charges a steep 25 percent tax on jet fuel, while Tamil Nadu levies 29 percent.

IndianOil and DMRC launch clean hydrogen buses

NEW DELHI

Indian Oil Corporation Limited and the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation have introduced cutting-edge hydrogen-powered buses in the national capital. This landmark joint initiative marks a significant leap forward in promoting clean, sustainable, and eco-friendly urban public transportation across India.

IndianOil Refineries Director Arvind Kumar announced that the two newly deployed hydrogen fuel cell buses will operate smoothly between Central Secretariat and Kartavya Bhavan. Crucially, the green hydrogen powering these vehicles is produced directly at IndianOil's specialized research and development center located in Faridabad. Because these advanced fuel cells rely entirely on hydrogen, the vehicles emit nothing but water vapor, creating a completely pollution-free transit option.

While only two shuttle buses are running in this initial phase, IndianOil is actively working to scale up its green hydrogen capabilities. The company is currently fabricating a massive ten-kiloton green hydrogen facility at its Panipat refinery, which will eventually support wider commercial transit networks as the economics of the technology mature. Additionally, IndianOil is running trials with fifteen other hydrogen vehicles nationwide.

The clean energy push aligns seamlessly with Prime Minister Narendra Modi's recent appeals for the nation to adopt low-carbon technologies to mitigate global crude oil supply uncertainties. With India currently importing eighty-nine percent of its crude oil requirements, shifting toward domestic green hydrogen is vital for long-term energy security. Kumar reassured the public that despite volatile global fuel markets, all ten IndianOil refineries remain highly stable and are operating at over one hundred percent capacity.

Ravi Shastri: Sanju Samson is the future T20 captain

Ravi Shastri backs Sanju Samson for India's T20 captaincy following his spectacular Player of the Tournament World Cup performance

NEW DELHI

Former India head coach Ravi Shastri believes star batter Sanju Samson has what it takes to lead the national T20 team in the future. Shastri praised the wicketkeeper's growing maturity, stating that his excellent performances have made him a top candidate for the captain's role.

India recently won the T20 World Cup at home under Suryakumar Yadav. Samson played a massive part in that victory, even winning the Player of the Tournament award for his crucial, match-winning knocks. Shastri thinks this success is just the beginning of a bright leadership journey for the 31-year-old over the next few years.

"India might look for a new captain by the 2028 World Cup," Shastri said during a review. He noted that Samson is a permanent fixture at the top of the batting order and has plenty of experience leading the Rajasthan Royals in the IPL for five seasons.

In the past, critics often questioned Samson's consistency despite his obvious talent. However, Shastri feels those doubts are now completely gone. Samson recently smashed three consecutive half-centuries during the World Cup, proving he can handle high-pressure situations.

Shastri added that Samson single-handedly turned big games around for India in the tournament's crucial knockout stages. Combined with his current stellar form in the IPL, Shastri insists that Samson has silenced his critics for good and earned his spot as a future leader of the Indian cricket team.

Brad Haddin confident of Punjab's playoff chances

DHARAMSHALA

Despite a fifth straight loss, Coach Brad Haddin insists Punjab Kings can still reach the playoffs by winning their remaining two crucial matches

Despite suffering a fifth straight loss against Mumbai Indians, Punjab Kings (PBKS) assistant coach Brad Haddin believes the team can still reach the playoffs. He stressed that their tournament destiny remains completely in their own hands with two games left.

Punjab recovered well from a mid-innings collapse to score a strong 200/8, thanks to their lower-order batters. Even though Mumbai chased the target with just one ball remaining, Punjab stays in fourth place with 13 points in a tight playoff race.

"Our destiny is still in our hands," Haddin said after the game. He made it clear that there is no room for error now, and the equation is simple, Punjab must win their remaining matches.

Haddin praised his team for setting a high total but credited Mumbai's Tilak Varma for playing a special, match-winning innings. He admitted that the dressing room was hurting after the close defeat, but noted that pressure is exactly what makes the IPL exciting.

The coach also pointed out that T20 cricket has changed, meaning a score of 200 is no longer enough to scare chasing teams. He emphasized that the squad has full faith in its players and needs to rediscover the winning form they showed early in the season. Punjab Kings will play their final home match in Dharamshala against Royal Challengers Bengaluru on May 17.

Punjab Kings Must Reset For Playoff Push

NEW DELHI

Former South African cricketer Mark Boucher believes Punjab Kings (PBKS) face a massive mental challenge after their heartbreaking loss to Mumbai Indians. He has urged the struggling franchise to forget about qualification math and play fearless cricket in their remaining must-win matches. Punjab suffered their fifth consecutive defeat in Dharamshala, failing to defend a strong total of 200/8. Despite starting the season beautifully, their playoff hopes are now hanging by a thread. Boucher suggested that constantly worrying about reaching the top four might be putting too much extra pressure on the players.

"They need to reset mentally," Boucher stated during an interview. He explained that shifting away from qualification scenarios and adopting a nothing-to-lose attitude could free up the squad. He noted that IPL momentum shifts incredibly fast, and losing streaks often happen due to small, missed opportunities.

In the match, Prabhsimran Singh's fluent 57 and Azmatullah Omarzai's quickfire 38 helped Punjab post a competitive score. However, Mumbai chased it down with one ball left, powered by Tilak Varma's unbeaten 75.

Boucher pointed out that fine margins and pressure moments swung the game. He specifically blamed an expensive over from Marco Jansen as the major turning point. Jansen bowled too full and wide on a surface where hard, back-of-a-length deliveries were the toughest to hit, releasing all the pressure built by spinner Yuzvendra Chahal. Punjab must now win their final league games to stay alive.

BUMRAH STEPS UP AS STAND-IN MI CAPTAIN

DHARAMSHALA

Mumbai Indians (MI) stand-in skipper Jasprit Bumrah shared a light-hearted joke about his captaincy journey across cricket formats after leading his team to a thrilling six-wicket victory over Punjab Kings (PBKS) in the ongoing IPL.

With regular captain Hardik Pandya recovering from back spasms and vice-captain Suryakumar Yadav out due to personal reasons, Bumrah made a successful IPL captaincy debut. Reflecting on his leadership experience, the ace speedster jokingly remarked that only the Indian ODI captaincy is left on his resume now, though he finds that unlikely to happen.

"I have captained a Test match, I have captained T20Is, and now the only game left is ODI cricket," Bumrah said with a smile during the post-match presentation. "But I don't see that happening. Jokes apart, I am very happy and enjoyed my time."

Turning his focus to the game, Bumrah praised his team's execution on a dry Dharamsala pitch. He commended the bowlers for keeping their nerve and holding a consistent length. He also highlighted Tilak Varma's spectacular, match-winning knock of 75 runs off just 33 balls, alongside explosive support from English batter Will Jacks and a disciplined bowling spell by Shardul Thakur.

Ravichandran Ashwin defends Hardik Pandya over Mumbai's slump

NEW DELHI

Veteran spinner Ravichandran Ashwin has defended Mumbai Indians (MI) captain Hardik Pandya, stating it is unfair to blame him alone for the team's poor IPL 2026 season. Mumbai has won just four out of twelve matches and is already out of the playoff race.

Ashwin emphasized that the entire squad failed to perform, making it unreasonable to target the captain. He reminded critics that Pandya successfully led Gujarat Titans to a title and a runners-up finish, proving his strong leadership skills.

Replacing a legendary captain like Rohit Sharma, who won multiple IPL trophies and a World Cup, brought immense pressure and social media backlash. Ashwin noted that handling such massive fandom requires a thick skin. He added that Mumbai's bowling leaked heavy runs, giving the captain very little control on the field.

Pandya has faced a tough season, scoring only 146 runs and taking four wickets while battling form and fitness issues. Ashwin expressed concern over Pandya's batting timing, wondering if a hidden physical injury, like a back problem or tennis elbow, was causing him to miss deliveries he usually hits out of the park.

Despite these struggles, Ashwin labeled Pandya a once-in-a-generation player and a vital linchpin for Indian cricket. Other star players like Suryakumar Yadav and Jasprit Bumrah also had quiet seasons, and both had to lead the side when Pandya missed three games due to injury. Ashwin concluded that one bad season is acceptable after Pandya's previous international success.

Defying critics, Bengaluru lifts maiden IPL trophy

NEW DELHI

Indian batting maestro Virat Kohli revealed that finally winning the IPL trophy with Royal Challengers Bengaluru (RCB) was the most emotional moment of his career. He expressed immense gratitude for experiencing the triumph before retiring from the game.

Kohli described the overwhelming feeling of dropping to his knees in prayer when the team ended its painful 18-year wait for the title. Bengaluru lifted their maiden trophy by defeating Punjab Kings in the final at Ahmedabad. Having been with the franchise since 2008, Kohli explained that years of heartbreaking near-misses made the eventual victory deeply meaningful.

"It is difficult to explain the emotions of those final moments," Kohli admitted. He noted that living through the immense pressure season after season, while critics labeled RCB as a big team that could never win, was incredibly tough.

The 37-year-old confessed that while he would not have spent his life in regret without a trophy, he always wondered what reaching the pinnacle would feel like. He believes the long delay actually amplified their joy. Winning early in his career would not have given him even a fraction of the satisfaction he felt after enduring so much collective struggle.

Currently, Kohli is in spectacular form, smashing 484 runs in 12 matches during the ongoing IPL 2026 season. His powerful batting displays have propelled Bengaluru to the top of the points table as they confidently bid to defend their championship title.

Injured Jamie Overton Ruled Out Of IPL

NEW DELHI

Chennai Super Kings (CSK) all-rounder Jamie Overton expressed immense heartbreak after a right thigh injury officially ruled him out of the remainder of the IPL 2026 season. The England cricketer has already returned home to the United Kingdom for medical scans.

Overton shared his disappointment at leaving the five-time champions during such a crucial phase of the tournament. He thanked the passionate CSK fans for their incredible love and support, adding that he is already looking forward to returning next year. The Ruturaj Gaikwad-led franchise has named Dian Forrester as his replacement.

Overton's sudden departure adds to Chennai's massive injury crisis. The team is already missing key players like Nathan Ellis, Khaleel Ahmed, and legendary wicketkeeper MS Dhoni, who is sidelined with a calf injury.

Losing Overton is a severe blow to the squad's balance. He was CSK's second-highest wicket-taker this season, claiming 14 wickets at an impressive average of 17.78. He even won the Player of the Match award on May 11 after taking 3-36 in Chennai's thrilling victory over Lucknow Super Giants (LSG). Beyond his reliable seam bowling, his explosive power-hitting lower down the order rescued the team multiple times.
